rage

rage is an opportunity to clear the air but leaves a bitter aftertaste sanguine aborigines mock the missionaries and reflect on the rosaries and hosiery love is the medicine that can't be filled by prescription laughter waits around the bend for riverboat gamblers and real estate agents mortgaged values are the worth and the price of penny stocks ingenues and debutantes rehearse the foxtrot a wealth of ambiguities is captured in the contract's fine print the plumber fixes the drain as new dreams ascend in the drowsy dawn
