Vingage

Sometimes I get lost in your eyes

Sometimes I just get lost in your eyes and try to come up with some clever disguise but I'm probably transparent when I think I'm being smart I'm usually being just the opposite that's for sure apparent

Yes sometimes I just get lost in your blue eyes
and try to come up with some clever disguise

I try to find an excuse to call you or write you maybe ask a silly question that I might already know the answer to, or give you a compliment

Yes sometimes I just get lost in your blue eyes
and try to come up with some clever disguise

You are just so beautiful, so surreal and have so much sex appeal it's dripping off the page like butterscotch I want to savour every moment of that double cream, it tastes
fresh and serene

I really don't know in a deeper way who you are, I just keep guessing and with my fragile head you sure are messing

Yes, sometimes I just get lost in your blue eyes
and try to come up with some clever disguise

Anyway it's a good sign that life stirs in these old bones and I'm looking for some saturday night moans I opened a bottle of wine this evening lit a candle and meditated on your face, perhaps one of the best creations of the human race

Yes, sometimes I just get lost in your blue eyes
and try to come up with some clever disguise

You know I'm blushing shades of red, I've taken out some magic pens and written your name across my context

Maybe you're just an image I have of what a woman's supposed to be, or maybe it's just that it gets lonely on these streets

Yes, sometimes I just get lost in your big blue eyes and try to come up with some clever disguise... and why is it so hard for me to speak my truth

Yeah
I don't know who you really are but I keep guessing and sometimes I just get lost in your blue eyes and endeavour to come up with some clever disguise

can you see me now
