Then there was love

How do I describe to you the depth of my devotion
You fill me with this intense, fulfilling emotion

To be yours is the greatest honor I will ever know
You are the reason my inner thoughts now has a flow

You are my sunlight above the cloudy sky
You are the confidence when I'm shy

My love, you are my greatest gift born from a darkness so deep
You make the hills I climb feel less steep

You are the pulse I feel when I lay in bed so still My heart keeps beating for you, and always will

To have you is to defeat the demons in my life
And no greater honor would there be than to one day be your wife

To stroke your hair when it's grey, in front of the everlasting fire
That, my love, is my greatest desire
