

Tribute to life

Numb and reckless I can't go on
Because now the reinventing is gone
All unwritten words they want me to be
Take my eyes, I don't wanna see

Silhouettes, silhouettes

Don't blame the stereotype

Every day with you I've become this useless
More and more every day
I wanna be more like me and less like who I was
I have become this monster.
'Cause you told me to be like you

Silhouettes, silhouettes

Don't blame the stereotype

I didn't mean to hurt you
I didn't mean to say those things
I had wrong, I admit.
(But I have never been so strong)
I lie to your gorgeous
And you believe my eyes

Silhouettes, silhouettes

Let me blame the stereotype

I'm the anti-cancer
I'm the anti-you
I'm the anti-life

'Cause I have become you

Texten är utskriven från Poeter.se

Författaren NotMyselfButMe med Poeter.se id #14855 innehar upphovsrätten