I will never wear a halo

I've never worn a halo and I would certainly not ever wear yours.

All you do is spread your empty hellos all over the world, putting people on stand by while keeping yourself on repeat.

No I've never worn a halo, I've never been that nice.

I tell it as it is and I'll stop your poisoning of this colorful world.

You keep telling me it's all black and white, maybe some grey but you're missing out on all the colors as you are running to reach the goal.

Yes you're missing out on life as it's supposed to be, never get to know how real love could feel.

I will never wear your halo, because it's made of poison slowly killing the true you which is stuck deep within.
