

Publicerad 2009-10-13 19:04 av jacqueline

Inspirerad av Shakespeare och hur vissa kan "sätta på sig ansiktet" på morgonkvisten i väntan på bussen.

A miserable every-day life

I put on my mask
and wear it with each breath I take in this miserable,
every-day life

When you turned away and let your love go I despised you and disguised my remorseful eyes

I put on my mask and wear it and hide myself from this miserable, every-day life of mine

What is this that I call life?
When all I do is to frame myself from all of it
I put on my mask
and turn away from you and what I call life.

Jacqueline

Texten är utskriven från Poeter.se

Författaren jacqueline med Poeter.se id #29421 innehar upphovsrätten